 THAILAND
 STATISTICAL REPORT 2006

Acknowledgements

Thailand In 2006, the number of international tourist arrivals to Thailand was 13.82 million, an increase by more than 20%. This was a high rate of growth equivalent to that in 1987 when the campaign "Visit Thailand Year" was promoted. Major causes of this phenomenon were the recovery of tourism in Tsunami-affected areas and the public relations campaigns to promote attractive images of Thailand during the Sixtieth Anniversary Celebrations of His Majesty's Accession to the Throne in 2006 and the Royal Flora Ratchaphruek 2006 during November 2006 - January 2007. Although the political problem in Thailand and the unrest in the three border provinces in the South had affected tourists' decision for travelling, it could not halt international tourists from an increasing growth at a dramatic rate.

The important mentioned data can be seen in the 2006 Statistical Annual Report in detail, which contains the overall performance of the tourism industry of Thailand during the year. It also includes the figures of international tourist arrivals, Outgoing Thai travelers, air traffic, tourism receipts and expenditure, tourism balance, accommodation establishments, the average occupancy rate of tourist accommodation establishments in major cities as well as the internal tourism.

We hope that the statistics provided would prove beneficial to various agencies both in the public and private sectors interested in the tourism industry as a good source of information for their decision-making in related operations.

Summary

Tourism Situation of Inbound Tourist Arrivals to Thailand in 2006

Overview

World tourism in 2006 with a total number of 846 million tourists grew by 5.4%, a lower growth rate than the previous year (5.5%). The slowdown was attributed to terrorist attempts, Avian Influenza (Bird Flu), and volatility of oil prices hovering at high levels.

Considering by region, the African region still enjoyed the highest growth of 8% with an impetus from an open sky policy, followed by a 7.6% growth in the Asia - Pacific region. Leading growth markets in this region include South Asia and Southeast Asia with the rates of 10% and 9%, respectively, due to the recovery from the tsunami disaster in Thailand. The European region grew by 4% as predicted with support from major events, such as the Winter Olympic Games in Turin, Italy, the Football World Cup in Germany, the celebrations of the 250th anniversary of Mozart, etc. In addition, an extension of low-cost airlines was among major causes to affect such growth rates. The Middle East and the Americas regions had growth rates lower than the expectation, of 4% and 2%, respectively. The Middle East region was affected by a political conflict between Israel and Lebanon. The Americas region faced economic problems as well as continuing devaluation of the US dollar. As a result, a slowdown in US tourists, a major market of the region, was reported.

Thailand In 2006, the number of international tourist arrivals to Thailand was 13.82 million, an increase by more than 20%. This was a high rate of growth equivalent to that in 1987 when the campaign "Visit Thailand Year" was promoted. Major causes of this phenomenon were the recovery of tourism in Tsunami-affected areas and the public relations campaigns to promote attractive images of Thailand during the Sixtieth Anniversary Celebrations of His Majesty's Accession to the Throne in 2006 and the Royal Flora Ratchaphruek 2006 during November 2006-January 2007. Although the political problem in Thailand and the unrest in the three border provinces in the South had affected tourists' decision for travelling, it could not halt international tourists from an increasing growth at a dramatic rate.

The situation of international tourist arrivals by the quarters of the year was as follows :-

Quarter I : A high growth rate by 34.69% was recorded. This was mainly due to the recovery from the tsunami impact and the significantly low statistics base at the same period in the previous year, resulting from a severe impact of the Tsunami disaster. Such growth appeared in all regions, with the leaders in the Middle East and Northeast Asia regions and followed by Africa, South Asia, Europe, Oceania and the Americas regions, respectively.

Quarter II : An increasing growth still continued at a pace lower than the previous period, by 24.06%. The recovery from the Tsunami impact went on. However, the growth rates of each region showed changes. The regions with a prominent growth were Europe and Oceania.

Quarter III and IV : An increasing growth continued steadily, especially during the first two months of the third quarter, until the coup d'etat that was staged on 19 September. Such political problem affected the growth from the late third quarter to the early fourth quarter. Slowdowns in the number of tourists were clearly seen. However, only Asian markets were affected by the political crisis, such as China, Japan, Singapore, the Philippines, and Indonesia. Improvements were made almost all markets at the year's end. As a result, the growth rates in the last two quarters increased by just 11.79% and 11.97%, respectively.

East Asia

In 2006, tourists from East Asian markets to Thailand extended by 9%, a medium growth rate. The markets capable to an increasing growth were still major markets, such as China, South Korea, Japan, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Malaysia, and Singapore. Factors supporting the region's growth were the robust economy and lesser pressure on inflation resulting from the oil price problem. Thus, consumers were given more purchasing power although they were still careful about their spending. In addition, new air routes were introduced together with an increase in flights in many routes by both regular and low-cost airlines. This offered an opportunity for tourists to travel more conveniently and at lesser costs. Other contributing factors included the magnificent atmosphere of the Sixtieth Anniversary Celebrations of His Majesty's Accession to the Throne in June and the Royal Flora Ratchaphruek 2006 during November 2006-January 2007 at Chiang Mai. The two events enhanced public relations efforts attracted more tourists from Asia to Thailand. Although a negative factor such as the political change was triggered in the late period of the third quarter, it had only a small impact on certain markets, such as Singapore, Japan, and China.

Given details by market, it was found that all markets except Brunei enjoyed a healthy growth, especially South Korea. In 2006, Korean tourists were recorded in a seven digit number for the first time. This resulted from positive factors on a robust expansion of the economy, the appreciation of the Won currency, and many charter flights to U-taphao Airport and Phuket International Airport during the late part of the year. The Japanese market was rather sensitive about incidents of a crisis nature. Therefore, a slowdown in this market occurred during the final quarter of the year due to the political situation. The Chinese market, meanwhile, saw a highly increasing growth in the first half year, but the growth slightly dropped in the later part of the year due to political changes in Thailand. A supportive factor of the Chinese market was the celebrations of the 30th anniversary of Sino-Thai diplomatic relations. The Hong Kong and Taiwanese markets regained a satisfactory growth after the Dragon Airlines' re-operation of flights to Phuket, and the Hong Kong Express Airways' opening of a new air route to Chiang Mai at the year's end. Major markets in the ASEAN region; namely, Malaysia and Singapore, still enjoyed a steady growth although they were affected almost all year round by the unrest in the three Southernmost provinces of Thailand. The political problem as well as involvement with the share purchase by the Singaporean Temasek Holdings company caused some Singaporean tourists a lack of confidence in visiting Thailand. However, important positive factors were a new route operated by Tiger Airways from Singapore to Udon Thani 3 flights a week, as well as an increase in flights to Phuket by Singapore Airlines. Indochinese markets showed a considerably soaring growth in the Vietnamese market only. The fast growing economy of Vietnam resulted in more educated Vietnamese people who took an outbound trip to broaden their horizons.

Europe

In 2006, the number of tourists from European markets to Thailand grew at a very high rate of 22.53%. The expansion was recorded in all markets and continued throughout the year. There were many major factors supporting the expansion: an economic growth after sluggish over the past five years, recovery from the tsunami impact, advertising and public relations to enhance positive images of the country, the creation of an impression in hospitality extended to tourists suffering the tsunami incident, and activities held as part of the Sixtieth Anniversary of His Majesty's Accession to the Throne. These took part in retaining Thailand as a favourite destination among tourists in European markets. Although Thailand had to encounter a political conflict with protests to oust the government, it led to a bloodless and peaceful coup d'etat in September which the European people thought political activities normally found in a democratic regime. Furthermore, no state warnings were announced to caution the tourist visit to Thailand. Therefore, there was no impact on the travel of tourists from the European markets. Additionally, another important factor supporting the considerable growth was that more airlines and routes were allowed in both regular and charter flights, such as the Moscow-Bangkok, Zurich-Bangkok, Kiev-Bangkok; routes by Thai Airways International: the Moscow-Bangkok, Moscow-U-taphao, Moscow-Phuket, Saint Petersburg-Phuket routes by Aeroflot Airlines, etc.

Given details by market, it was found that the promising markets; namely, Russia and East Europe, still had a very high growth. That resulted from an increasing growth of the economy and a growing trend to visit Thailand where a variety of tourism products and services were offered at inexpensive prices. Scandinavian markets, including Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Norway, each enjoyed a high growth despite the fact that many of their people died in the Tsunami disaster. Since Thailand provided them with good assistance at the incident, tourists from these markets had a good feeling from Thai hospitality. Major markets, such as Germany, France and the United Kingdom still saw a satisfactory growth. This was a result from the concerted promotion with overseas tourism business companies, which made Thailand take the lead of these markets over Vietnam which was a great competitor with an awing expansion over the previous year. In spite of external factors obstructing the travel of tourists, such as terrorist attempts, bombing of underground train stations in London, protests against the government by students and labor forces in France, 2006 Football World Cup in Germany, and world oil prices hovering at high levels, they could not halt such a tremendous growth of the region.

The Americas

In 2006, tourists from the Americas to Thailand still continued strong growth from the previous year, an increase of 10.74%. Although Thailand had a political conflict which led to a coup d'etat in September, the changes were bloodless and peaceful. Therefore, there was a small impact for a short period before a rapid return to normalcy. The United States and Canada were still major markets of the region. A supporting factor was an economic expansion of the United States, which was higher than projected due to more consumption of the private sector, in spite of a high financial deficit, a soaring inflation rate, and the depreciation of the US dollar. Canada saw a high economic growth from the oil export sector, the country's important industry. Such economic strength caused the continuous appreciation of the Canadian dollar. Also, that was a push for more Canadian tourists to desire an outbound trip. Meanwhile, Thailand made continuous campaigns for positive images and was rated one of six famous destinations of the world by the USA Today, a magazine recognized by US tourists. Activities held in Thailand as part of the Sixtieth Anniversary Celebrations of His Majesty's Accession to the Throne, as well as the Royal Flora Ratchaphruek 2006 at Chiang Mai, a popular destination among tourists of this region, could be a tourism magnet to attract more tourists at a satisfactory level. Furthermore, Thai tourism was promoted by the private sector by means of holding sales promotional fairs in the Americas and Canadian markets to campaign for tourists' participation in celebratory activities on the auspicious occasion.

South Asia

In 2006, tourists from South Asia to Thailand continued a high growth from the previous year, by 16.34%. The high growth was recorded in the first half year, and a decline showed in the second half year due to an outbreak of political fighting. India was still the major market of the region. Factors supporting the growth were a continuously increasing growth over the past 2-3 years, activities held in Thailand as part of the Sixtieth Anniversary Celebrations of His Majesty's Accession to the Throne, and the Royal Flora Ratchaphruek 2006. In addition, there were new routes and more flights: three flights per week on the Bangkok-Hyderabad route by Thai Airways International, and one more flight a week by Indian Airlines. Also, Jet Airways, a low-cost airline, was launched to operate seven flights per week on the Bangalore-Bangkok route, starting in January 2007. This would encourage continuous growth in the Indian market in 2007. The second market share of the region was Sri Lanka, that was ranked fourth after Bangladesh and Pakistan, respectively, in the previous year due to those markets faced occasional domestic unrest. Meanwhile, Sri Lanka's conflict between the government and the Tamil Tigers began to cease and yield a limited impact. Thus, the outbound tourism situation improved.

Oceania

In 2006, The Oceania market to Thailand had a high growth of 26.16%, a rebound of increasing growth throughout the year after the impact of the Tsunami disaster in the previous year. Although there were domestic incidents to lessen confidence of tourists such as a coup d'etat in September, there was no impact on tourists in these markets. Otherwise, the number of tourists grew continuously. Factors contributing to the growth were a rapid expansion of low-cost airlines and more frequency of flights of regular airlines. This helped promote an outbound trip made by more tourists, as well as made the costs cheaper than domestic tourism. For example, Jetstar Airways operated 3 flights per week on both the Sydney-Phuket and Melbourne-Bangkok routes. In addition, publicity and public relations efforts were made to promote the image of Thailand through activities held in Thailand as part of the Sixtieth Anniversary Celebrations of His Majesty's Accession to the Throne. Also, the Royal Flora Ratchaphruek 2006 taking place at the year's end was another drive to increase more tourists to Thailand despite an obstacle in the form of travel warnings frequently issued for tourists to be careful about a visit to Thailand.

The Middle East

In 2006, the number of tourists from the Middle East to Thailand recorded the highest growth of 34.13%. The major cause of this came from recovery from the impact of the Tsunami disaster. Other important factors supporting the rapid growth were strong growth of the economy and an expansion of the aviation industry, especially Emirates Airlines. Although the region faced incessant unrest: terrorist attempts in Iraq, Palestine, and Israel, with Iran positioning itself as a significant actor leading to a war with the United States due to the nuclear weapon development issue, and although Thailand faced a political situation and domestic unrest, the region's growth still soared highly and continuously, except in September when a coup d'etat was staged. The growth rate of the month was negative before rebounding to normalcy in the following month.

Africa

In 2006, tourists from the African region to Thailand grew at a high rate of 28.90%. This was caused by the recovery of tourism in tsunami affected areas. The major market of the region was still South Africa. The positive factor was the opening of a new air route from Johannesburg to Bangkok with 3 flights per week by Thai Airways International, which helped facilitate travel to Thailand.
